Mathematics Education in Secondary Schools and Two-year Colleges Paul J. Campbell 1988

Teaching in the Middle and Secondary Schools Richard Dean Kellough 2009 This practical, performance based methods text for middle and second school pre-service teachers is organized around four developmental components: Why-gives the rationale to support the components that follow What-what you will be teaching How-how you will teach it How well-how well you are teaching it. Organized into four parts that are then split up into ten modules, the text begins with a history of education going back to colonial times. The modules then cover the many and varied aspects of teaching pre and early adolescents, such as teaching students with exceptionalities, classroom management, diversity, instructional planning, using technology in the classroom, assessing student achievement, and self-assessment and continued professional development. The authors contend that the best teacher is one who has an eclectic style and can monitor their own progress and make changes and adapt their strategies if they are not succeeding. The ninth edition has been carefully updated to reflect the diversity and current topics in the field today. The book is a valuable resource for students today and as a reference for many years to come. New To This Edition: NEW! Improved balance of content between middle and secondary schools-this emphasizes that middle school is uniquely different from both high school and the traditional junior high school and that pre-and early adolescence is different from late adolescence. NEW! Technology has been integrated throughout every module of the book-New features including "Teaching Scenarios," "Activities," and "Technology Rich" features were added to all modules. NEW! Contributions from pre-service and in-service middle and secondary school teachers, teacher educators, and educational researchers have been added--to strengthen the tie between theory and practice.

Modules Harold David Black 1991 The changes in teaching, learning, and assessment brought about by the introduction of the National Certificate in Scotland were assessed. Data were collected through interviews with and a survey of 511 teaching staff (398 responses) and 1,646 students (1,277 responses) in a number of colleges throughout Scotland and a survey of 344 employers (68 usable responses). Teaching staff and employers also made additional comments on the National Certificate. Findings indicated that employers liked the emphasis on practical and applied learning. Staff and students indicated the importance of teaching more than was covered in the learning outcomes, but few staff believed that it was being achieved. Employers liked the flexibility of negotiating programs to meet their needs, but small employers seemed to find it difficult to take advantage of flexibility. Some data suggested that employers and employees were less than enthusiastic about being involved in training. Employers believed that in-house training met present and future needs of the company and college-based training was geared to future needs. Staff claimed to be using student-centered techniques and welcomed the wider use of a variety of teaching methods. Students felt that the teaching methods used were interesting and motivating. Some employers were concerned that the assessment system did not pose a sufficient challenge to students. Students liked the diagnostic approach to assessment. Staff had some reservations about assessment. (YLB)
