London Independent Schools: A Practical Guide to Admissions Daniel Sage 2026-03-22 London's independent school admissions landscape is complex, competitive, and remarkably varied — and most parents encounter it with little more than word of mouth to go on. This guide covers the full picture: how entry points from 4+ to 16+ actually work, how schools assess candidates, what the main tests and platforms involve, how to approach interviews, and how to think strategically about school choice in a city where the options can feel overwhelming. It is written for parents at the beginning of the process as much as those already in it — for anyone who suspects there's a gap between what schools say publicly and how the system actually works. What's inside: - Every entry point explained: 4+, 7+, 11+, 13+, and 16+ — what's tested and how they work - Assessment platforms decoded: ISEB, Atom/Quest, London Consortium, GL, CEM - The 11+ process: timeline, interviews, waitlists, and what "holistic" actually means - Tutoring that works: rhythm, frequency, avoiding the over-tutoring trap - Grammar schools vs independent schools: catchment, competition, real differences - International students and home education: what schools actually need - Strategic guidance on choosing schools and keeping perspective when the pressure builds - Financial realities: scholarships, bursaries, hidden costs, access arrangements
