Elementary School Teachers' Mathematics Instructional Decision Making in the Context of District Mandates on Instruction

Heather Anne Martin 2008 "In the current educational climate, teachers in low-performing schools are experiencing pressure from state and district policy-makers to raise student performance on state tests. Some district administrations have undertaken various measures including implementing numerous and specific mathematics content standards, adopting particular curricular packages and requiring teachers to use them as their primary instructional materials, and even creating pacing guides with uniform timelines for presenting lessons to students. These efforts have had the cumulative effect of urging teachers to stick closely to a standard curriculum in order to raise student test scores. Teachers must also interpret and attend to the needs of their students, and ideally teach their students to understand mathematical concepts and processes, as opposed to narrowly mastering procedural skills. It may not always be possible to both follow administrative mandates about instruction and meet student needs, and teachers may have to make a compromise between these two objectives. In this study, I examined how elementary school teachers in a particular accountability-pressured school decided to teach mathematics. Drawing on multiple interviews and ten classroom observations per teacher, I created portraits of the mathematics instructional choices of four second-grade teachers, including their use of instructional materials such as textbooks. I drew on an analytical framework adapted from Stein, Grover, and Henningsen (1996) to assess various features of the lesson, in order to note the interaction between the materials and the teachers' decisions about how to use them. I developed a "lesson signature" for each teacher, a visual representation of the typical organization of the teacher's lessons and how materials were used within them. My findings indicated that the teachers' individual goals for their teaching, beliefs about their students' needs, and interpretations of the district's curricular mandates interacted to steer their instructional choices to very different results. Two of the teachers dutifully followed the textbook, while two essentially disregarded it in favor of other materials. Teachers' own senses of their autonomy to make curricular decisions and their support for their students' autonomy in learning math emerged as important factors. I suggest implications for teacher professional development and curricular materials development"-- here. The Mathematics Lesson-Planning Handbook, Grades K-2: Your Blueprint for Building Cohesive Lessons guides teachers step-by-step through the decision-making process of planning K-2 math lessons that are purposeful, rigorous, and coherent. Instructional experts Beth McCord Kobett, Ruth Harbin Miles, and Lois A. Williams streamline and deepen the lesson-planning process showing teachers how to access students' complex needs, clarify learning intentions, and select tasks that will best lead to student understanding of mathematical concepts and skills. Along the way, teachers create an individualized blueprint for planning K-2 math lessons for maximum student learning. The lesson-planning process guides teachers to: Identify the mathematical content, language, and social learning intentions for a lesson or unit, and connect goals to success criteria Determine the purpose of a math lesson you're planning by distinguishing between conceptual understanding, procedural fluency, and transfer Select worthwhile tasks and materials that make the best use of representations, manipulatives, and other instructional tools and resources Choose the format of your lesson using reasoning and number routines, games, whole-class discussion, and pairs, or small-group work Anticipate student misconceptions and evaluate understanding using a variety of formative assessment techniques Decide how you'll launch your lesson, facilitate questioning, encourage productive struggle, and close your lesson Included is a lesson-planning template and examples from kindergarten, first-, and second-grade classrooms. Chapter by chapter, the decision-making strategies empower teachers to plan math lessons strategically, to teach with intention and confidence, and to build an exceptional foundation in math for all students.

Grab this book and learn how to empower yourself and your school community with information gleaned from your school's data. Experienced educators and authors offer simple instructions that can help focus school improvement efforts and result in increasing teacher expertise—a factor that positively affects the quality of life for students long after they have left the classroom.

Accepting responsibility for such far-reaching influence requires educators to adopt instructional improvement as a standard by which a school needs to operate and as a means to collaborate and interact with one another. More than that, though, instructional improvement is an important component of successful schools.
